WOMEN ,YOUTH AND GBV ACTIVIST.

Strictly comfortable in my own skin, voice and body.

My marriage with spoken word started in 2004. I was committed with words written down handling whatever emotion that I felt. If I was sad, I would write. If I was happy I would write. Along the years Church finally became my stage and school concerts became my power for the knowledge that I regained in event planning and organizing. They say "Ikusasa alaziwa". The plan has always been to flourish and inspire as a young woman from kzn. Born and bread in Pinetown kzn, I told myself that I would make sure that women in KZN especially those who are in the arts, RISE.

In 2006 Written voices media and marketing agency was born. This became a platform for young, vibrant and all talented beautiful people of all genres within the arts to make their mark. "VUKA" and "Live open mic sessions" and many other events which found a home in well established spaces such as (just to name a few) the stable theatre, the bat center, Cappellos and FTV.

Upcoming artists became ONE with professionals here because it was warm. It is important to collaborate and not compete so that we build a strong community and rise up towards being internationally recognized.

I started being a master of ceremonies more in the corporate event space. Radio stations began to approach me for interviews and collaborations up until I produced and hosted my own show "Young, gifted and African" which aired on Imbokodo Fm. A show mainly for the youth and strongly supportive of young women. What changed my life and encouraged me to keep pushing was a head on collision that I was involved in 2007 November 18 on our way to church. I was told that I would never walk again. Among many other injuries and a life lost, I told myself that now I have to work extra hard.
